

Toward New Designs for Teaching and Learning in the Professions: The Jossey-Bass Higher Education Series on Higher Education

Preparing Professionals for the 21st Century

In Toward New Designs for Teaching and Learning in the Professions, Irv. Glick and David H. Blake and their esteemed colleagues explore the challenges and opportunities facing professional education today. With in-depth case studies and thought-provoking commentary, this book provides a roadmap for transforming professional education to meet the demands of the 21st century.

The authors argue that professional schools must move beyond traditional models of teaching and learning to create innovative learning environments that foster critical thinking, problem-solving, and collaboration. They call for a more interdisciplinary approach to education, one that integrates academic knowledge with practical experience.
